reflections;
let's observe, but not evaluate yet.

glTF: discussion about extent of interoperability, how to keep general enough, to not have a million specs, but not have too broad which makes specs unusable.

jin: can we make contributing (to open source) feel like a game?

sharing progress on work of past weeks, creating dashboards and overviews, feeding content from meetings from different groups into an AI assistant.

e.g. have an AI assistant for each group (e.g. OMI, MSF, OMA3, M3) that can help onboard people, but also serve as glue to allow interchange of relevant information between groups.

think of this as an open source framework for AI agents, that can plug into any of these models - Llama, Grok, OpenAI, Anthropic, etc.

Pablo: have different AI agents for different topics, specialisations. Also different value sets, beliefs, (for good and bad). Discussion around knowledge sharing across contexts, cultural differences. challenges with propaganda, ethics, but tools can also build in curiosity, complicating the narrative!
