Proposed Thursday the 4th, 5th or 6th of January for our next Demo Night. For reference, our last demo night can be viewed on youtube here

"We also have partners planning some .metaverse event to launch a new TLD" - Evo

If anyone feels like the first week of January is too early, please add your thoughts and alternatives to the chat :)

How do we manage partnerships and relationships with other organizations? Is there a designation?

 Can someone apply a time limit to our discussions?

Possible Steps:

- did topics have interested parties before that we couldn't get around to?
- can we automate top most engaged topics / threads
- are there repeated topics we cover each week (i.e. welcome new members, check in from working groups, etc.)
- if you have an item you want to add to the agenda, you may use the github discussion.
- possibly use emojis to demonstrate when a agenda is closed, or not.

We don't have a Discord channel for the WASM working group. There is an action item from last week to create one. Who should take that on?

Jesse Alton just now

a discord channel was created, a role was created, and a github repo was created.

We didn't all expect to create a discord channel in the first place since discord doesn't work for everything.

Power-Ups

Who are the stakeholders, where can we talk about suggested discussions, there is a lot of inertia around it that we don't want to lose. There was discussion about when should the group first meet, when do we want to use the github repo, and when do we want to create a discord channel? The discord channel was set to be created after the first meeting.

We stream using streamyard, and can multi-cast to youtube, and twitch. What types of videos should we consider doing in a Q&A style?

Fire asked: What about these meetings, could we try out using streamyard?

"One thing I loved was the meta traversal 10 min summary video. It was super potent and enjoyable."
