OMI Core Values

We collaborate, driven by research, privacy and accessibility, to make the metaverse more human.

We work incrementally, iteratively, and with intent.

We are creating a cooperative, sustainable culture of innovation.

We empower the people making the metaverse.

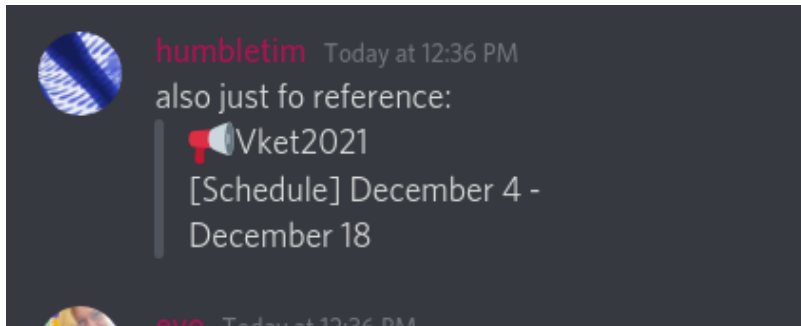

We must cultivate resiliency by championing diversity, and freedom of choice.

Is it an opt-in or opt-out process?

@BMO Is it an opt-in or opt-out process?

Robert Today at 12:47 PM
Good question. Probably both? I don't think most companies will pay attention to an effort until it's already got traction. So we should add the main players. But smaller projects should be able to submit a PR to be added to it.
Or ask to be removed.

just to mention i think we need to be very mindful if approaching the idea of creating 2d map(s) of the metaverse -- because fundamentally that involves identifying property lines and relationships between those properties; to the extent we are documenting "what is" that is one thing, but to the extent we are defining (assigning) property rights (directly or as side-effect), that like a different potential that's not necessarily aligned directly with interoperability

(How)Do we want to respond to the 7 Rules of the Metaverse, by Tony Parisi?

- announce our support? As they are in line with what many of us believe to be examples of what things can and should be.
