created some automated triggers on our kanbans on our github. Now when you create a new issue (if it's issue worthy) it will automatically be added to the corresponding project backlog, as well as the Master OMI backlog.

If you have a task that isn't quite issue-worthy, you can simply create a card directly on the backlog.

Furthermore, if someone mentions something of issue-worthy value in a github discussion, you can actually create an issue directly from that discussion by clicking the eplipses on the top-right of the discussion
