interoperability?
solo:behaviour of agents.

this community is not necessarily the biggest pain point, but the interoperability aspect is of interest, so still valuable to current and future members.

"MSF" working group - rename, restructure to "interop with other metaverse orgs" or similar Khronos meeting: went very well, felt good potential for future collaboration.

The scale and scope was interesting to learn about.
Mutual awareness emerging about the different scales of operation of OMI and Khronos - good complementarity.
Great teamwork all round, was a good experience for everyone to work together on something.

next step: bring together value directions.
"marketing angle" of e.g. the glTF extension sprint - think about the value the sprint brings broader than the glTF info.

TODO: look at our resources, then see how they contribute what we want.
If the idea is to put out 4 weeks of weekly sessions and progression, we need a syllabus and plan.
Then the calendering.
How do we make sure we have everything lined up.

From a local outreach, it is more casual. As long as there is solid notes and people recording that is fine.

But we also need to look future looking, it seemed to really fit with the Khronos meeting. Mutual collaboration to grow the community.

jimmy newsletter work ongoing, taking content from Discord, working on automating processing, month by month and by specific channels.

It would be good to have more media assets.

Mention that assets, and agents, could help to improve communications with Khronos, perhaps also within their org and with the public - also see the work that jin is doing. Could be an automated social media manager.

TODO: Update Open Collective information (and W3C) - information and contact information.
Update e.g. https://github.com/omigroup/omigroup/wiki/Initiatives-in-the-larger-Metaverse-open-ecosystem to emphasize our relationship / interoperability with them
