We have been iterating on our processes since launch, and have never assumed to have a perfect system. The most important measure of an asynchronous work system is if it is actually getting used, and iterated on. If others don't get the process, it may not be the perfect system we think it is.

Backlogs can be intimidating, we want to archive any dead tickets to make way for a fresher start.

Other People will be adding their experience and expertise as it relates to Project Management and agile practices. Let's clear out what we can to ensure that we are lean and ready to test out a new potentially more refined approach. A list of the tickets can be found on discord in the `omi-github` channel.
